WELCOME TO

JONATHON PROVIS-VINCENT

National Show Convenor

Welcome to Bendigo, the heart of Australia's alpaca scene, for the most anticipated event of the year! We are beyond thrilled to bring you the 2024 AAA National Alpaca Show, where excellence and passion for alpacas take centre stage.

A massive shout-out to everyone who dedicated their time and effort to make this show a seamless and delightful experience, especially our incredible co-convenors. Your hard work has crafted an unforgettable event! We also extend our heartfelt gratitude to the AAA Board and the Showing and Judging Committee. Pulling off an event of this scale is no small feat, and your support has been invaluable.

We are grateful to have this extraordinary chance to connect with breeders from across the country, share knowledge, and witness the pinnacle of alpaca quality and fleece! This is more than just a show—it's a celebration of our vibrant alpaca community.

Don't miss out on this spectacular opportunity to experience the best in the industry. Let's make unforgettable memories together at the 2024 AAA National Alpaca Show!

JULIE WILKINSON

Fleece Show Convenor

By the time you read this, the National Fleece Show for 2024 will be complete and the winners announced on the AAA National Show facebook page. However, we have a great display of fleeces during the show weekend in Bendigo, so take the opportunity to peruse the entered fleeces - all details including the scorecard and fleece test will be displayed, allowing you to take a deep dive into assessing elite alpaca fleece.

We again recorded and uploaded the judges comments on the fleece during judging. If you haven't watched the facebook/youtube videos - go have a look. It is an interesting and educative opportunity.

In addition to the Age Champions and Best of Colour awards, we wanted to shine a spotlight on those older animals that are, and will continue to be, the backbone of improved breeding over the next decade. A special award, the Spirit of the Industry rosette, has been awarded to one huacaya and one suri over the age of 3 that maintains a commercially viable fleece of the highest quality over time. A special award to receive.

Thank you to all the volunteers who assisted in weighing, sampling and facilitating the judging of our fleece entries.

There will be demonstrations of show fleece preparation for suri (Friday lunchtime) and huacaya (Saturday lunchtime) for those who would like some tips from breeders that regularly show fleeces. These will be held at the fleece display at the beginning of lunch (approx 30 mins).

SHARON DAWSON

Alpaca Art Show Convenor

This is my second year convening the Art & Photography Section of the National Alpaca Show 2024.

I look forward to showcasing the beautiful artworks entered in the different mediums artists choose to use, from pencil to paint to the beauty of the captured moments with the photography section that is always a pleasure to see.

I hope everyone takes the time to look at and enjoy the beautiful artworks on display at the National Show in Bendigo.

THE NATIONAL

JUDI BROMAGE

Alpaca Craft Show Convenor

Welcome to our brilliant exhibition of National Alpaca craft.

The National Alpaca Craft show is all about showcasing the many ways in which alpaca fibre can be used creatively. Alpacas are bred for their fibre and creative craft people are keen to use this fibre in many diverse ways.

This year I have the privilege of working with Lezley Golding and Pamela Pratt. All three of us use alpaca in our crafts. Lezley weaves, knits, hand paints yarn, felts and conducts workshops. Pam knits, spins and conducts a monthly craft club. I have our alpacas' fleece spun into yarn by a mini mill and weave it into scarves which we sell at our local market. All of these activities introduce more and more people to the superb natural qualities of alpaca – light, soft and warm, perfect for craft, knitting, weaving, felting, spinning and as a fabric to be worn.

We are building awareness within the wider craft community of an important annual craft competition using alpaca fleece. Along with this, we are creating a demand for alpaca fleece and yarn, opening up opportunities for AAA members to sell their fleece to craft groups and to mini mills for processing into yarn.

Come and see the display of beautiful craft entered into the show by the creative craft community both within the AAA membership and beyond. We encourage all craft lovers to come and join in with the demonstrations and enjoy viewing the creativity of the craft community.

SARAH VAUGHAN

Youth Competition Convenor

As the convenor of the Youth Sections—Paraders and Young Judges—at this year's National Alpaca Show, I am thrilled to welcome entrants from all over Australia to participate in these exciting and educational competitions. Our youth programs are designed to develop the skills and passion of young alpaca enthusiasts, offering them a platform to showcase their talents and dedication.

The competitions are divided into various divisions and age groups to ensure a fair and engaging experience for all participants. These divisions not only encourage healthy competition but also foster a sense of community and camaraderie among young alpaca handlers and judges.

We are immensely grateful to our volunteers and sponsors for their unwavering support and commitment. Their contributions are vital to the success of our events, and we deeply appreciate their dedication to nurturing the next generation of alpaca enthusiasts. Thank you, and we look forward to seeing you at the show.

BRETT FALLON

President, Australian Alpaca Association

Welcome to the 2024 AAA National Show in Bendigo! We're here to celebrate a year of progress in the Australian alpaca industry.

I'd like to extend a warm welcome to all members, judges, and guests. Jonathon Provis-Vincent, Maddy Bissels, and their team did an outstanding job last year, and I am confident this year will be even better. We're very grateful for the countless hours they have dedicated to making this event a success.

I'm proud of the AAA staff and volunteers, who continue to impress me. This year's National Show is our best collaboration yet, showcasing the unity within our industry to raise awareness and promote the Australian alpaca industry.

This year, we've made some important changes to ensure a more sustainable future. We've adopted NLIS for exhibits and implemented the new biosecurity program, Alpaca CheQA. I appreciate the support of our industry leaders in these initiatives to enhance on-farm biosecurity and engage more members of our community.

We've included some key information in the catalogue to keep our members informed effectively. The future of our industry looks bright, and we'll keep sharing updates on how the AAA is working to prioritise our goals.

Keep safe. Keep well. Enjoy everything alpaca.

Judges

Halter Judges

BARBARA HETHERINGTON

Barbara has had extensive experience of judging in halter and fleece, both within the UK and across Europe. She has judged some of the largest shows on the circuit and had the pleasure of co-judging (alongside Amanda VandenBosch) the male entries at the British Alpaca Society National Halter Show in 2023. Barbara will also be judging the BAS National Fleece Show 2024.

When not judging Barbara enjoys sharing her knowledge and has facilitated many workshops both in person and via Zoom. She also tutors on behalf of the British Alpaca Society including teaching on the judge training programme.

Barbara is a co-owner of Beck Brow Alpacas based in Northern England. This successful and highly regarded stud farm has grown quickly from an initial purchase of four females in 2008 to a herd of approximately 200. The herd has been highly rewarded on the show circuit culminating in winning the BAS National Halter and Fleece Supreme Championships in 2022.

The farm is a family run business with husband Paul and son-in-law Craig being partners and working full time with the herd.

Barbara is a former Critical Care Nursing Sister giving her a good knowledge base when caring for the health and welfare of her alpacas. It also provided her with skills to work as a member of a team and she has been part of the BAS National Show Committee since 2013, as well as organising local shows and being Chair of her BAS Regional Group.

NATASHA CLARK

Natasha has extensive experience with suri and huacaya, running a herd of over 450 huacaya and suri alpacas of all colours in Victoria.

Natasha has been a full-time alpaca breeder since 1991 and qualified as an Australian Alpaca Association judge in 2000. Since that time, she has continued to develop her skills to become a Senior Judge and an AAA Judges Trainer.

Natasha successfully qualified as an International Judge in 2004 at the IAJ School in Peru and has judged in New Zealand, UK, Europe and all over Australia including all of our major shows.

In 2008, 2012, 2014 & 2019 she had the privilege of judging the Australian Alpaca Association National Show. In 2015 and 2023 she judged the British National Show, in 2016 and 2022 judged the New Zealand National Show, and in 2016 judged the Benelux Harpet Show. In 2019 Natasha judged the Bayreuth Germany Show, Boekel Netherland Show, Norwegian National Show, Swedish National Show and the Finish National Show.

Natasha regularly gives her time to present seminars and mentor and train breeders, aspiring judges and qualified judges.

Fleece Judge

JILLIAN ELWERS

Jillian hails from a small town just 12km North of Kyneton in central Victoria. With 40 acres in Langley, she's been captivated by alpacas since 1998, starting her journey with just 2. Over the years, her herd has flourished to around 200 alpacas, at times, of various types and colours.

Jillian delved into alpaca judging in 2012, achieving level 2 status by 2014, and has since judged numerous shows across Australia and New Zealand, including prestigious events like the National Fleece Show.

Beyond her alpaca endeavours, Jillian has a diverse background in breeding British Bulldogs, Bengal cats, and now Pygmy goats.

With 25 years of experience, she's also a qualified all breeds dog groomer, and she's gearing up for her next challenge: the study of dog behaviour and training.

Important Note:

Unfortunately just prior to print Cheryl Cochrane has advised that due to ill health she is unable to attend this years National Show as the Parader Judge.

The board has therefore made the decision of appointing Jillian Elwers as stand in for Cheryl. Thankyou Jillian.

We wish Cheryl all the very best with her recovery and look forward to having her judging Paraders at the 2025 National Show.

DARREN CROTHERS

Artist Darren Crothers, born in Ouyen, Victoria in 1967, can be described as a Representational Artist who seeks to create unique drawings and paintings, encouraging a dialogue with the viewer.

Located in Maiden Gully, he draws inspiration from the surrounding region of Central Victoria. He is passionate about capturing the transient and changing character of Australian life.

Darren studied Fine Art at the Julian Ashton Art School, Sydney, in 1995, under the tutelage of such Artists as Francis Giacco, Nigel Thomson and Paul Delprat. In 1996 he became a teaching assistant to Francis Giacco. He also studied with Graeme Inson, the protégé of the Tonal Impressionist Max Meldrum.

Alpaca Craft Judges

We are fortunate to have three judges for the craft section - all experts in their field.

Michelle Guest - Weaving and Felting

Michelle has been exploring textiles for some years and still feels excited each time she makes a work. Michelle studied at RMIT -Diploma of Arts – Studio Textiles & Design and came 2nd in the Warwick fabric design awards at Furnitex in 2007. Weaving, Tapestry, experimental textiles, felt, and spinning are her main interests at present.

Michelle has been part of group shows, open studios and continues to expand her knowledge through ongoing learning. Michelle often has a few ideas on the go in both weaving and Tapestry.

Jenny Bellew - Knitting and Crocheting

Jenny Bellew has high praise for her Gran who taught her 3 grand daughters to knit, to crochet and to tatt. Jenny excelled in all 3 with an ulterior motive.....permission to climb Gran's monster mango tree. Even now workshops are commenced with 'God Bless Gran'.

Certificates of Dress Design were obtained at Qld Institute of Technology and followed by designer employment at Coats Patons, Victoria, then Craft Editor of New Idea Magazine.

However, designing and yarns were her passion over publishing, hence 19 years followed as head designer for Panda, a division of Australian Country Spinners who acquired Cleckheaton and the Australian Patons licence during her watch.

She always relishes the opportunity to judge, be it at the Royal Melbourne Show, the Alice Springs Beanie Festival or Country Agricultural events and at same time observe the selected craft techniques the entrants were choosing for their passion.

Barb Oakes - Hand Spinning

Barb Oakes from Back to Back Crafts in Neerim South will be judging the spinning for the AAA National Alpaca Craft Show this year.

She learnt to spin when her youngest was a year old, while living in the Wimmera, miles away from the nearest town on 187 acres.

Coming up to winter she decided to venture into town and buy some wool to knit warm baby clothes. It was then that a little voice in her head said "Stupid woman!! Why are you buying stuff that you can't afford when you have 500 sheep in your backyard!!!" So, she bought a spinning wheel instead and has been spinning for the past 34 years and now also teaches spinning.

JUDE ANDERSON

Young Judges Judge

Alongside her husband, Alan Cousill, Jude has been breeding alpacas since 1991, initially in Victoria, and from 2004 in Oregon USA. They returned permanently to Australia in January 2021

In 1998 Jude qualified as an AAA Alpaca Judge and was certified at the 2000 International Alpaca Judging School in Peru. And in 2002, she certified as an alpaca judge in USA, going on to achieve AOA Senior Judge and Instructor/Trainer status in 2005. Since then, she has been heavily involved in both apprentice judge training and certification, as well as judge re-certification and calibration clinics in both halter and fleece in the AOA Show System. Jude currently serves as Chair of the AOA Judges' Advisory Committee and is the halter liaison to the AOA Show Rules Committee.

Jude co-authored The Art & Science of Alpaca Judging, a comprehensive judge training text also used extensively by alpaca judges and breeders alike worldwide.

CHERYL COCHRANE

Young Paraders Judge

Cheryl was one of 3 mentor studs educating and assisting youth in 2012 where the Capri-corn Camelid Club was formed. In 2013 she joined the Youth Development Committee which later evolved to AAYE Committee up until 2019 and she rejoined the AAYE in 2023. In 2014 Cheryl became an apprentice parader judge and in 2015 attained her Parader Judge badge.

Cheryl has great knowledge of the Parader competition and is looking forward to judging this years National Show.

Thank You!

An event such as the National Alpaca Show would not be possible without the time, expertise and persistence of a large number of volunteers. We thank our volunteers for their help in all the big and small ways they have contributed. We are grateful to our exhibitors for coming along and making the 2024 National Show a fun and successful weekend.

The Other AI Challenge

Effective artificial insemination may be critical to ensure future global genetic diversity in alpacas

Alpaca populations outside of Peru and Australia are comparatively small. Introduction of new genetic material is essential for long-term population stability, genetic vigour, and development of desirable traits. Inbreeding risks in geographically isolated populations are increased by a limited number of common ancestors and current restrictions on international trade in camelids in some countries.

The use of frozen sperm to exchange genetic material across international borders is a common practice in livestock rearing. It is also an effective strategy for preserving genetic diversity in many endangered species. Factors critical for success include successful harvesting, storage, transport and defrosting of a sufficient quantity of healthy sperm as well as monitoring ovulation in the recipient female to create a viable environment for implantation (Herrick, 2019).

Embryo transfer has been the most successful method of artificial breeding with alpacas and is used by several large-scale breeders in Australia. It is an expensive technology, requiring a sterile laboratory space onsite with trained technicians and specialist equipment for extraction and implantation. It also requires sufficient donor and recipient animals to be available onsite to make the exercise worthwhile.

In contrast, livestock artificial insemination (AI) using frozen semen can be more cost effective, particularly for small or medium-sized breeding operations. It also offers an opportunity for new income streams to be developed by producers supplying quality frozen sperm to international markets.

AI is usually undertaken by a vet at their facility or in a clean stable, and can be limited to one or a few recipient females at each time. Hormones are used to stimulate ovulation in the female prior to the AI procedure. Frozen semen is defrosted, inspected for motility under a microscope, and inserted into the recipient female.

Alpaca breeders have not previously been able to benefit from artificial insemination technology due to biological differences of camelid reproductive systems. Researchers have noted the viscous character of semen and low sperm count as being barriers, as well as challenges with the timing to induce ovulation in the female (Morrell and Abraham, 2020; Tibary and Vaughan, 2006).

The problem with alpacas does not lie with the collection or insemination methods, as artificial insemination using fresh sperm achieved pregnancy rates of between 50-70% (Bravo, et al., 2000). Instead, it seemed to be a fragility with the sperm that resulted in insufficient volume and quality of viable sperm on defrosting. Previous AI trials using frozen sperm had very low pregnancy rates and have been mostly unsuccessful in obtaining live births (Aisen et al., 2021; Vaughan et al., 2003).

New research published in 2024 reports increased success in pregnancy rates and live births from AI with frozen semen by using one of two commercial extenders, Biladyl and AndroMed (Contreras Huamani et al., 2024). Extenders are a fluid added to semen after extraction and before freezing. They work by reducing cold shock (the damage to the sperm from the cryogenic freezing and defrosting process) and by protecting against oxidative effects.

Contreras Huamani et al (2024) also incorporated a window of 30-34 hours between induction of ovulation by hormone injection and insemination; based on the optimum windows identified by Vaughan et al. (2003). The group of 36 females in the Peruvian study impregnated by AI resulted in 10 live offspring. These were the first live births achieved from frozen sperm in over 20 years, since Bravo et al. in 2000.

This study suggests that there is merit in a larger trial of AI using frozen sperm. AI offers a way to maintain genetic diversity in global herds as its lower costs encourages the participation of breeders with no facilities for embryo transfer. An effective, cost-efficient AI program of genetic exchange will help to prevent inbreeding and offers an alternative income pathway for breeders in nations with limitations on import and export of livestock.

Mighty-Min[®]

Support livestock health with Mighty-Min. Supplement the essential trace minerals depleted from Australia's ancient soils, ensuring maximum absorption and availability for all ruminants.

Goldleaf & Suncloud have worked together for over 15 years. This long-term partnership has been key to their success. Both studs have been consistently awarded at a national level, and to push further ahead than this the studs continue to invest in improvement of the commercial attributes at the heart of all breeding decisions.

The continued refinement of the stud herds ensures they are producing the best alpaca product for the manufacturer and the end consumer.

Committing to the SRS breeding program ensures reliability. Each generation has long and soft fibre, with tangible improvement year on year.

Our focus is lifetime productivity and easy-care genetics. This includes traits often overlooked when buying seedstock, such as high fertility, feed conversion & natural barbers pole resistance.

We want to help move the whole industry forward. Our collaboration demonstrates it takes more than one.

Please do not hesitate to contact Brett Fallon for more detail.

Suncloud Juanchito (pictured below) exhibits skin with high follicle density, well packed fibre bundles, layered in clusters rarely seen in a mature sire. He produces a highly usable fibre at over 10 years of age. The deep bold crimp is a recognisable trait of fast-growing fibre that maintains processable length into maturity. Juanchito and his progeny are highly fertile, with a fast-growing sound frame. His progeny are very consistent. He is proven to be a sire to increase lifelong yields, improving fibre length and micron. His progeny are easily recognised for the same even fleece traits, winning multiple Sire's Progeny awards.

EADRA – When will “it matter” for alpacas ... ??

As you know, the Australian Alpaca Association (AAA) has been working with Animal Health Australia (AHA) and the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, with a view to the AAA becoming signatories on the Emergency Animal Disease Response Agreement (EADRA).

So when will “it matter” for alpacas ... ??

According to the 30 disease-specific AUSVETPLANS that outline the response to the emergency animal disease, alpacas would be impacted in the event of the 6 disease incursions listed in the table below.

At this stage, these are the only exotic diseases that would impact the movement of alpaca livestock or the fleece, in the event of a disease incursion. The biosecurity measures we take both on our own farms and as an industry, to minimise the spread of disease, are an important element in the endeavour to optimise containment and control of any disease.

There is a raft of information on the AHA website about each of the diseases mentioned above, if your curiosity has been piqued ... !! In the meantime, with the health of our alpaca herds in mind, let's keep improving our own biosecurity measures.

Disease	Pathogen	Alpaca Livestock Movement Restrictions	Alpaca Fleece Movement Restrictions
Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD)	Virus	Yes	Yes
Surra	Haemoparasite transmitted by biting flies	Yes
Vesticular Stomatitis (VS)	Virus	Yes
Anthrax	Bacteria - often associated with grazing creek lines in drought conditions following floods	Yes	Yes
Lyssavirus (Rabies)	Virus - often transmitted by infected wild dogs, foxes and dingos	Yes (all mammals)
Blue Tongue	Virus	Yes (would mirror sheep and cattle movement controls)

Author: Lee Sadler, Board Director and Alpaca Industry Representative on EADRA.

AAA NATIONALS 2024

FAMILY STUD FROM NSW TO SPONSOR EVENT!

A Show-tastic Time!

Storybook Alpacas are proud to be sponsoring the 2024 Australian Alpaca Association National Show. They have been exhibiting at this show for over 15 years and it's one of their favourite events on the calendar. This show has afforded them access to the best alpacas in Australia, many of which were proudly purchased and utilised within their herds. These include notable males such as the powerhouse WINGSONG VALLEY Iceman, WYTE PARK Timothy & REGAL HOUSE Mr. Darcy. Their own animals are no disappointment at a National level. Such as COOLAWARRA Penny's for Tim, the 2024 National Grand Champion Female Huacaya, ILLAWARRA Maverick Dancer & COOLAROO Mercado, both previous national champions.

Storybook... A tale of generations

As full time farmers, the team at Storybook have proven that alpacas can operate as a profitable and multifaceted livestock enterprise. Their herd is among one of the largest in Australia, standing proudly at approximately 1,500 alpacas. A proper family business, that spans multiple generations. Based in the Southern Highlands of New South Wales, Mick, Karen & Rubey, consider themselves lucky to have the lifestyle alpacas have afforded them. With heavy involvement in the live export and fleece markets, Storybook has an impressive network of international partners and relationships. As if they aren't already busy enough, they also operate the Courtyard Cafe in Berrima. A place of warm country hospitality, great food and home of the best coffee in town... SEE MORE at the Storybook pens.

Potential impacts of climate change for alpaca producers

Impacts of global climate change are already being experienced by Australian alpaca producers. Severe weather events are affecting food supply, causing stress-related loss, and increasing risk of alpaca illness or death from parasites and insect-borne diseases.

Always a challenging country for floods, fires, and droughts, Australia is experiencing an unprecedented run of severe weather events resulting from global climate change. Farm damage from fires, floods, hail and severe storms are obvious impacts of climate change, but producers are also seeing these sudden and severe weather events result in stock losses from heatstroke and hypothermia.

Severe weather causes metabolic disruptions, oxidative stress, and immune suppression (Lacetera, 2019). In such situations, the young, old, and pregnant are most at risk. This high level of physiological stress can result in livestock deaths and productivity loss through pre-term births and late-term abortions.

Severe weather events also affect feed supply. It is commonly recognised that floods and droughts reduce cropping load for hay and grain producers, but variable weather conditions also affect the nutritional value and trace element content of feed. This can cause micro-nutrient deficiencies or risk toxicity developing from trace element overload. For example, increased copper toxicity was observed in sheep in Australia due to increased wet conditions preventing the summer dry-off of pasture (Milton, 2021).

Weed growth has been apparent in recent seasons, particularly in fire damaged or drought-stressed landscapes which then experience large amounts of rainfall. Alpacas can be susceptible to nitrate poisoning from plants such as capeweed and alkaloid poisoning from plants such as Paterson's curse, fireweed and common heliotrope (Staples, 2024).

A less recognised impact of climate change is the potential increase in livestock loss from parasites and disease carried by insect vectors (Passamanti et al., 2021). Researchers are finding increasing evidence that the distribution of insects, parasites, and pathogens are shifting as a direct result of changing temperatures and rainfall patterns.

Parasites are well-known causes of illness and death in alpacas (Bedenice et al., 2022; Wagener et al., 2021). Barbers Pole is strongly associated with high mortality as, without regular faecal screening, high worm burdens may not be detected by owners until the alpaca is suffering severe anaemia and anorexia.

Monitoring and prevention of worms is critical for good alpaca health. Unnecessary drenching creates a toxicity burden for the animal and quickly results in the rise of drench-resistant parasites. Rather than relying on drenches, current veterinary advice is that producers should start testing for worms every spring. Worm test kits can be obtained from Land Services offices and/or Agricultural Departments in your state.

Researchers are investigating effective strategies to address the rise of drench-resistant parasites, examining areas such as microbial gut health and breeding for stronger genetic resistance (Beredenice et al., 2022; Passamonti, et al., 2021). Barbervax vaccine has been developed as a result of these new approaches, and is now widely used in sheep production (LLS, 2024). Like most medicines and vaccinations, Barbervax is off-label for alpacas in Australia.

Another parasite causing high mortality for alpacas is liver fluke. The fluke is spread by snails and alpacas ingest the fluke eggs off snail-infested pasture. Wet pastures from very high rainfall during 2020 to 2023 resulted in large snail populations in pasture in many areas of Australia (Perry, 2023). A loss of natural predators during the 2019-2020 bushfires may also have affected snail populations.

Floods and intense storm rainfall in a short time (rain bombs) can also spread fluke eggs. Climate change is not only seeing more frequent floods and rain bombs, but these events are affecting wider areas than ever before. Any paddock area that is inundated by rising water from floods or stormwater runoff from higher ground should be considered at risk of liver fluke. Liver fluke can be discovered by using a faecal worm test; but it is important to do a sedimentation test instead of the floatation test commonly used for other worm species. Flukicide treatments and timings for re-testing an infected animal can be obtained by consulting your local veterinarian.

Floods can also affect the spread of other water-borne pathogens, including Cryptosporidium and Giardia. Outbreaks are associated with contamination with sewage from flood events and hot weather creates optimum conditions for outbreaks in contaminated water. Fencing off creeks and dams can help to limit livestock exposure to contaminated water and riparian zones.

Warm and wet conditions are also known to create ideal conditions for bacteria and fungus (such as ringworm) to thrive. Skin conditions and other problems can also result from parasite infestations, such as dermatitis from mites and paralysis from ticks. Again, changes in climate are changing the zones where bacteria, fungus, and insects can survive.

Insects carry viruses and bacteria which they can spread to livestock by bites or by laying eggs in skin, wounds or mucous membranes. Insect vectors are known to carry Bluetongue virus which affects sheep and alpacas, Lumpy Skin Disease in cattle, and equine infectious anaemia in horses. Mycoplasma haemolamae is presumed to be transmitted by mosquitos or midges and a case was previously identified in an alpaca in New Zealand (MPI, 2013).

The learning from the current research is that alpaca producers would be wise to keep informed on potential spread of new diseases or parasites into their local area. Preventative measures such as screening programs, fencing off creeks and dams, and regular health checks of all animals is vital for keeping alpaca herds in optimum health.

Good biosecurity practice is also vital. Biosecurity programs, such as Alpaca CheQA, offer comprehensive protocols to help manage the spread of parasites and disease. Producers can also seek the advice of their local veterinarian or seek help from district veterinarians through their local land services office or department of agriculture. Remember, if you suspect a disease or have an odd pattern of illness or abortion occur without explanation, help can be obtained. It may be that the changing climate is a factor, and quick action with expert help to identify and respond to the problem may make the difference between losing a few animals and losing many.
